Carl Linnaeus noticed that different plants open up and close at different times of the day. Carl was good at recognising patterns.

In the space below, draw a different flower at three stages of opening and closing.

Wall hawkweed
Hieracium murorum